Register of Wills

The offices of the Registrars of Inheritance & Wills and related subjects are subdivisions of the General Custodian section of the Ministry of Justice and are located in district offices. The Registrars of Wills act under the Inheritance Law, as corrected in 1965, and the establishment of the registration offices on Sept. 1, 1998.

The registration of wills is obligatory. Wills are also handled by notaries who are required to notify the district office of their existence.

At the district offices one cannot receive information regarding Wills that have been deposited as long as the writer of the will has not passed away, and then for a small fee, when and if the enquiry about a person's will is supported by a death certificate.
